

A southbound car follows the cyclists into the single lane road and finds itself on the new textured pavement – just what the new measures are intended to avoid.